A Simple Remedy.

The readiness of some people to send for a man to do those little things about the house which the smallest amount of enterprise or ingenuity would enable them to do for themselves is illustrated by an incident reported in the Chicago Tribune of a family named Chucker.

They had bought some new gas burners with mantles. For a week or two the light was satisfactory; then it grew dim and dimmer until Mrs. Chucker sent for the gas fitter.

"It grows worse all the time," she explained.

"When was it put in?" asked the man.

"About a month ago."

"Ah, yes; I see."

Then he lifted the chimney off, took it out to the kitchen, washed it with soap and water, and the light burned as brightly as ever.

"Fifty cents," said the man.

An Argument For Social Frankness.

It is best to be sincere, as a family in Germantown recently found out. They had been entertaining a distinguished novelist from abroad who was not altogether acquainted with society's way of saying things it does not mean. The time came for her departure, and as the host was handing her to the carriage he said very courteously, "I am sorry you cannot stay longer."

To which came the unlooked-for retort, "Oh, but I can!"

There was only one course open. The trunks were taken down, the carriage sent away, and, to the consternation of her hosts, the lady re-entered the house. —Philadelphia Times.

ACCEPTS

McGovern's Training Offer.

Simms Wrote the Letter Monday.

Art Is Home For a Short Stay.

Art Simms is home again. He arrived in Akron, Saturday night, without having fought Tim Kearns, and will remain here for some time. He has not as yet accepted the training offer made him by Terry McGovern, but states that he will do so at once. Simms is feeling good and is in the best of condition, but has nothing in view at present.

Art states that he was ready to go in the ring at Bridgeport with Kearns when he found that there was but very little money in the house, and he then refused to fight. An effort is now being made to match the fighters for a go at New Britain, Conn., in August. "They have been faked to death at Bridgeport," said Simms, "and that's the reason for the small crowd there."

MADE NO CASE.

Superintendent A. H. Marks Dismissed After Trial.

The case against Superintendent A. H. Marks of the Diamond Rubber Co., who is charged with having driven an automobile at a speed greater than permitted by the ordinance, was dismissed Monday morning after trial in Police court. There seemed to be a great uncertainty as to facts among the witnesses for the prosecution, and no case was made against Mr. Marks.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists. E. ## HEAVY FINE

Imposed on Haneline by Judge Anderson.

Walter Haneline pleaded guilty Saturday before Judge Anderson to the charge of assault and battery and was fined $75 and costs. Haneline had trouble some time ago in Perkins park with a man named Engelhart, and was bound over to Probate Court by Mayor Doyle. It was alleged that he drew a revolver and attempted to shoot Engelhart.

ADDITIONAL LODGES.

O. U. A. M.

Summit Council No. 19 met in regular form Friday night in the new hall on South Howard st. The attendance was not what it should be, especially considering the importance of the meeting. Owing to the absence of several of the newly elected officers, installation services were delayed one week. Much important business came before the meeting and was disposed of. It is to be deeply regretted that our officers could not get around to be installed, and they should not lose sight of one of the by-laws, from which the following is taken: "An officer being absent from three consecutive meetings will forfeit his office, unless absence is caused by sickness," etc. This law will be strictly adhered to by the new Council, and you are requested to take due notice. Much important business will come before the meeting next Friday night.

"The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you desire to appear." That is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Every bottle that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the high standard of excellence claimed for it. People have found that it can always be depended upon for the relief and cure of these ailments and that it is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists. E. ## A Few More Remarks For Girls on Summer Fashions

A girl who knows says that white muslin gowns are about the only ones which never go out of fashion and never lose their popularity. The latest conceit in white muslin is a skirt, plain, save for a row or two of insert lace at the bottom, or broad lace entreeux with a mounting of small tucks or gaugings. This sounds very plain and simple, but the effect of extreme elaboration is given by the drop skirt which is a fluffy mass of ruffles of lace, or lawn and lace, to the knees.

The very prettiest neck bands, when the waist is not cut in the low, collarless mode, are simple bands of transparent lace, which do away with the decolette effect, but are almost as cool as none at all.

Early in the season it seemed that green in all its varying shades would be the fashionable color for gowns, parasols and ribbons. This color, is, however, now on the wane, for sharing the fate of all extremely popular things it has been used to excess and my lady now demands "something that everybody hasn't got." One reason for the decline of the popularity of the green parasol is that it throws a livid shade on the face.

An old style, and a pretty one, is being revived in the use of glaze silk in quaker-like checks of lead, silver gray and pale wood color which, next to Pongees, seems to be the most popular material for street wear. Pongee gowns are now ornamented with silk folds and narrow ribbons.

For garden parties dainty lawns with a simple trimming of tuckings in squares, chevrons, lozenges and crests are pretty.

Probably the most popular waist of the season has been the Gibson waist, but the plated bolero is a close second. A pretty skirt to be worn with the plated bolero is laid in plaits two or three inches wide at the belt and increasing downwards, ending in a loose flare at the foot.

The girle style of belt is regaining its old time favor with womankind, and one of the prettiest of the new belts is of creamy moire, narrow in front and slightly spreading at the back, girle fashion. The folds are kept in place by a long slide and the buckle is of metal.

The fashion designer has brought out a new collar which is finding much favor with women who wear shirt waist suits. It is a shaped stole collar, with long ends which fall to the bust. The collar is piped with colored taffeta.

A PROPHETIC JEWEL.

The Peculiar Ring That Was Owned by Marquise du Barry.

Marquise du Barry, whose lovely head fell into the basket beneath the guillotine in expiation of her levity, extravagance and folly, had in her possession a stone of which the Paris jewellers were unable to tell the precise nature.

There appeared upon it below the surface and as if under water an outline of a picture containing human figures. Strange to relate, when first the gem was given to its afterward unfortunate possessor this outline was not clear, but after it had been some months in her possession it grew more vivid.

One day the negro boy, Lamer, who was afterward instrumental, from revenge, in the downfall of the Du Barry, declared, looking at the jewel, that he could decipher the figure of a woman with disheveled hair leaning before a scaffold and surrounded by a crowd, while beside her stood the executioner.

A strange but authenticated circumstance is that the negro servant boy precisely described the guillotine. Dr. Guillotine had not then invented his celebrated instrument of death, nor had the horrors of the revolution begun.

Snatching the jewel from the hand of the servant, Mme. du Barry examined it, saw the kneeling woman, the angry crowd, the death knife falling, and, with a cry of agony, fell senseless to the floor.

Light on an Old Subject.

Old Mrs. Hubbard, several years after the poem appeared in print describing her fruitless visit to the cupboard in search of a bone for her poor dog, was speaking of the incident to her next door neighbor.

"This first place," she said, "it wasn't worth making a poem about, and, in the next place, the man didn't get it right. I saw the dog was hungry, and I went to the icebox and got a nice piece of raw beef for him. I don't feed my dog bones. And if I did I wouldn't keep them in the cupboard. The cupboard wasn't bare, either. It was just as well filled as anybody's."

"What do you suppose made the fellow say you went to the cupboard?" asked the neighbor.

"He couldn't think of any other rhyme for Hubbard," replied the aged dame, lighting her pipe with a fresh coal of fire. "These (puff) poets (puff) make me tired!" —Chicago Tribune.

A Feast of Reason.

"I was at luncheon the other day," said a north side woman, "where the hostess was a graduate of Smith college, three of the guests were graduates of Wellesley, two went through Yassar, and the other ladies present were graduates of Northwestern, the University of Chicago and Wells, respectively."

"Well," one of her hearers said, "it must have been very interesting. How I wish I could have been there! What did you talk about?"

"Let me see. Oh, yes—about how hard it is to keep help!" —Chicago Record-Herald.

Fifteen Kinds of Kisses.

The monks of the middle ages divided the kiss into fifteen distinct and separate orders—the decorous, or modest kiss; the diplomatic, or kiss of policy; the spying kiss, to ascertain if a woman has drunk wine; the slave kiss; the kiss infamous, a church penance; the slipper kiss, practiced toward tyrants; the judicial kiss, the feudal kiss, the religious kiss (kissing the cross), the academic kiss, or joining a solemn brotherhood; the hand kiss, the Judas kiss, the medical kiss, for the purpose of healing some sickness; the kiss of etiquette; the kiss of love, the only real kiss. —London Tit-Bits.

His Maiden Speech.

It is related that when the Earl of Rochester in the reign of Charles II. rose to make his maiden speech in the house of lords he said: "My lords, my lords, I rise this time for the first time—the very first time. My lords, I divide my speech into four branches." Here there was an embarrassing pause of some seconds. "My lords," the earl then ejaculated, "if ever I rise again in this house you may cut me off, root and branches and all, forever."

The Chinese King.

The king is the favorite musical instrument in Chinese temples. In its most perfect form it consists of a number of large flat stones of different shapes and tones. The sound is that of a chime of bells and is singularly clear and musical. The stones are said to be a peculiar variety of basalt found in the mountains to the north of China.

HOLES IN THE AIR.

Invisible Pitfalls With Which Airships May Have to Contend.

Some very terrible accidents may be expected to befall aerial navigators should airships ever become sufficiently perfected to make this species of travel at all common owing to the fact, well known to all aeronauts, that there exist in the earth's atmosphere at certain places and under certain conditions veritable holes or pits of vast depth. An airship sailing unwittingly into one of these aerial craters would sink with far more certainty and far greater swiftness than would a leaden ship of the same size and shape in an ocean of water.

Accidents of this nature have actually happened to aeronauts in the past, but of course the ordinary balloon is not nearly so much affected by the sudden descent as an airship would be. Nevertheless, an experience of the kind is sufficiently disconcerting even to the stoutest hearts and strongest nerves.

M. Tiesandier, ballooning with two friends above the town of Vincennes, some years ago, happened on one of these invisible air holes, which proved to be over a mile in depth, the balloon falling that distance with such incredible rapidity that the earth appeared to be rushing up to meet them with the speed of an express train, and the bags of ballast thrown out by the alarmed travelers fell not downward, as might have been expected, but upward. Luckily a denser stratum of air, answering to the bottom of the pit in question, was encountered when they were a few hundred feet from the ground, and the downward rush of the balloon was checked as if by contact with a pneumatic cushion. —Pearson's Weekly.

A Sudden Marriage.

"Let me tell you," says a Missouri correspondent of the Kansas City Journal, "about a marriage that happened in Saline county in 1856. The ceremony was performed by Elder McGarvey. The groom was a man named Johnson—I forget his first name—and, being mighty nervous about the approaching ceremony, he went to McGarvey and requested that he make it as short as possible and received the minister's assurance that he would do so. Mr. Johnson never forgot that night as he marched down with his bride on his arm and was met by the minister at the foot of the stairs. As soon as they reached the bottom step McGarvey stretched out his hands and said, 'You're married.' The suddenness of it took the groom right away, and he turned to his best man and shouted, 'Henry, am I married?' This marriage ceremony didn't take over ten seconds."

The Sensitive Tortoise.

Few animals seem more impassive than the tortoise, but those who have ever watched its movements know that the creature is really very sensitive. A few drops of rain will send it home with all speed. Even the distant approach of a shower makes it uneasy. Hence Gilbert White remarked that his tortoise showed "as much solicitude about the rain as a lady dressed in all her best attire."

The bright light of the sun seems especially grateful to tortoises. They rarely stir out at night, and the approach of winter drives them into their retreats. This physical sensitiveness shows their temperament to be less sluggish than is commonly supposed. The animal also learns to recognize persons and remembers those who feed it, instantly distinguishing them from strangers.

A Final Decision.

It was while Judge Clara E. Martin was on the New York supreme court bench that a self important young lawyer was arguing a motion before him. Tiring of the attorney's grandiloquence, Justice Martin interrupted him and started to render an adverse decision. "But your honor does not understand the case," still urged the attorney, who saw that things were not coming his way. "Permit me to explain the law. I have here some of the latest decisions of the court of appeals, in which it is held—"

"Motion is denied, with costs," again interrupted the justice. "Have you any later decision than that?" —New York Times.

Provoking a Husband.

A Mohammedan woman cannot of herself separate from her husband without his consent. He may divorce her with a few words spoken by himself. If she is clever, however, she will take him by surprise at an unguarded moment and contrive to do or say something which will make him so angry that before he can exercise sufficient self control to stop himself he has uttered the wished for words.

No Whistle.

Old Lady (to grocer's boy)—Don't you know that it is very rude to whistle when dealing with a lady?

Boy—That's what the gov'nor told me to do, mum.

Told you to whistle?

Yes'm. He said if we ever sold you anything we'd have to whistle for the money."

THE CLUMSY MAN.

You Can Never Be Sure of What His Next Break Will Be.

The great virtue about the really clumsy man is that he never exhausts his capabilities. When you think that the bedrock is reached, there is still a lower depth. If a dotminal relative should exist, the clumsy man asks after his health with great particularity and will not be satisfied until he receives a full and detailed reply. Should there be any incident in your past which everybody has generously agreed to forget it is the clumsy man who seizes the one, the inevitable opportunity, when the club is at its fullest and says loudly: "Somebody was talking the other day about that unfortunate little affair of yours in '93. Now tell me!"

When on meeting him you say casually and with no desire for information, "How are you?" he insists on giving you complete data, and he is as full of small complaints as a refractory pauper. It is only fair to add that he will ask affectionately after the colds of yesteryear, and his favorite locale for this is at the corner of a drafty street. He might be subsidized by influenza or he might get a commission on sore throats from his eagerness to pin you into the most dangerous position that can be discovered.

One desires an adequate amount of sympathy in distress, but our man always goes a little beyond this point. You are growing thin, and he says that you are wasting away to a shadow. You are growing stout, and he tells an unflattering anecdote about apoplexy. He can be more critical than a hair-dresser if occasion gives the least excuse. —Philadelphia Ledger.

A UNIQUE DORMITORY.

One That Is Owned by the University of the South.

Dean Hoffman was noted for charitable impulses, which his large income allowed him to indulge in. Some years ago the dean invested heavily in land in a small southern town which was then enjoying a "boom" period. Among the dean's other investments was a beautiful little hotel, exquisitely appointed and perfect in every detail. After while the "boom" fell through, and the little hotel became a losing investment.

At this time the chancellor of the University of the South, an old friend of Dean Hoffman, was on a hunting trip with him in the mountains of North Carolina.

"We are badly in need of a dormitory down at Suwanee," said the chancellor. "Yes," said Hoffman and sat thinking for a moment. "Well, you can have the hotel building down at B—," naming the town. "You can take it to pieces and move it to Suwanee. It ought to make a pretty little dormitory."

The chancellor was greatly pleased and made all the arrangements to move the hotel, when, to his astonishment, the citizens of the town obtained an injunction against its removal on the grounds that the hotel in a way was public property and that to remove it would leave the town without any hotel accommodations. A legal fight followed, but the university won out in the end. So the University of the South reveals in the luxury of the most unique dormitory in the world. —New York Times.

The Home of the Kindergarten.

The Japanese have the most perfect kindergarten system in the world. In fact, they originated this method of instructing by entertainment instead of by punishment inflicted. Their play apparatus for such purpose is elaborate, but all of it is adapted to the infant mind, which it is designed at once to amuse and to inform. The little ones of Japan even become somewhat interested in mathematics by seeing and feeling what a pretty thing a cone, a sphere or a cylinder is when cut out of wood with a lathe. They make outlines of solid figures out of straw, with green peas to hold the joints together, and for the instruction of the blind flat blocks are provided with the Japanese characters raised upon them.

Insomnia Remedies.

However hopeless you may consider your case, be slow to fly to drugs for relief from insomnia. A rubber bag full of broken ice applied to the back of the neck and a hot water bag at the feet are highly recommended as a remedy for insomnia even in obstinate cases. The circulation is equalized by this treatment.

The secret of hot milk cure also recommended for sufferers from insomnia lies in sipping the beverage. The act of slowly swallowing the liquid is soothing in its effect and generally produces the much desired drowsy feeling which leads to the coveted sleep.

In a Higher Position.

"Me darter Nora is goin' to marry Casey, that wurruks in the basement iv that build'n, but Oi do be tillin' her that she might hev looked higher!"

"Indade?"

"Yis. She cud hev hod Murphy, that wurruks on the top story iv that same skolecraper." —Baltimore Herald.

Putting It Gently.

"But is she pretty?"

"Well, I don't believe in talking about a girl's looks behind her back. Her father's worth about $200,000,000, and they've taken her to Europe twice without bringing back any titles, so you can form your own opinion." —Chicago Record-Herald.
